/PL President's Letter:
 (FROM ANNUAL REPORT TO SHAREHOLDERS)
 The following text was taken directly from an EDGAR filing.
 LETTER FROM THE CHAIRMAN
 I'm proud of the people of United Airlines, and it is my privilege to report to you on their 1999 accomplishments. The United Airlines of today is vastly different from the struggling institution of six years ago, thanks in no small measure to the commitment of United's employees to our customers, to our stockholders and to each other. (. . .)
 Hedging cut about 2.5 cents off the price of each gallon of fuel United purchased last year. And since fuel is United's second largest expense after people-related costs, the impact to the bottom line is significant.
 "Predicting fuel prices is a lot like looking into a crystal ball," says Awati. "Our hedging program allows us to define the upper boundaries of fuel costs well into the future and assure our stockholders that we are keeping costs under control."

/TX Management Discussion:
 The following text was taken directly from an EDGAR filing.
 Item 7. Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations This section contains various forward-looking statements within the meaning of Section 27A of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, and Section 21E of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, which are identified with an asterisk (*). Forward-looking statements represent the Company's expectations and beliefs concerning future events, based on information available to the Company on the date of the filing of this Form 10K.
 With respect to the forward-looking statements set forth in the "Environmental and Legal Contingencies" section, some of the factors that could affect the ultimate disposition of these contingencies are changes in applicable laws, the development of facts in individual cases, settlement opportunities and the actions of plaintiffs, judges and juries.

² Although financial items are displayed in thousands, they are searched in real numbers, rounded down to the two left-most significant digits. Negative numbers are preceded by a minus sign. Numeric operators (:, <, >, =, etc.) are used to search a range of values. To exclude records where numeric data is not present, use "NOT NA" (e.g. SELECT S3 NOT SA=NA).

⁴ Basic Company Information includes Company Name, Address, Telephone Number, Status, Exchange, Ticker, CUSIP, Disclosure, Forbes and Fortune Numbers, Location of Incorporation, Description of Business, Auditor, Legal Counsel, Stock Transfer Agent, Current Shares Outstanding, and Latest Financial Dates.
