

(Boca Raton) The News

FILE DESCRIPTION

The News focuses on news from Southern Florida, with regular society, business, weekend, and real estate sections. There are several key writers to follow Dave Barry, Ellen Goodman, and David Bower, who comments on political issues. Local companies include W.R. Grace and ADT, which both have their headquarters in the area; Sensomatic, the largest U.S. supplier of security tags to the retail trade; Levitz furniture; Rexell Sundown, vitamin manufacturers; MBNA, the largest credit card clearing house; Sony; Siemens Nixdorf; Office Depot; and North American Biologics. The newspaper also follows local financial institutions, such as Nationsbank, Barnett Banks, and First Union. There are also two local universities -- Florida Atlantic and Lynn Universities -- whose activities attract coverage.

/LP, /TX TEXT:
 Space exploration has always been a part of Joe Kaczmarek's life. He hasn't been to the moon or Mars , but the 21-year-old Boca Raton man was born on July 20, 1975, six years to the day after the first moon landing. Today, Kaczmarek is a member of the Palm Beach County chapter of the National Space Society.

"I've been interested in space since day zero," he said.

/TX At the South Florida Science Museum Sunday, Kaczmarek and about 2,000 other people explored the wonders of Mars , watching "Live From Mars " on NASA television, attending the planetarium show "The Red Planet" and checking out the museum's other exhibits.

It exceeds our wildest expectations," said Gary Bogner, the museum's director of astronomy.

In fact, a few hundred people had to be turned away from the West Palm Beach facility.

"Live From Mars " was a satellite program that introduced and explained the latest photographs from Mars and showed people from around the country asking scientists questions about the project.
 (...)

"There's a lot of public attention to this," said Mark Penntila of Lake Worth, adding that the growth of communication on the Internet enables people of all ages and educational levels to watch as the mysteries of space are revealed.

Caitlin Carnes, 5, of Boynton Beach, watched intently and occasionally lent a hand as her father, Jim, helped her assemble a lander.

Susan Carnes watched with a smile as they worked together. Like many people at the museum Sunday, she's excited about the mission to Mars .

"I think it's incredible," Carnes said. "The sharpness of the pictures was amazing."

McGee said that the National Aeronautics Space Administration's Discovery program, which spends less on each mission but sends out more of them, should keep people interested in space.

"I'd like to drive a car on Mars ," Shannon said. ) CAPTIONS: Photos by Vincent F. Safuto ; Megan Behringer, 10, of Wellington, assembles her `Mars lander' at the National Space Society's exhibit at the South Florida Science Museum on Sunday afternoon. Megan's lander was dropped from the ceiling a few minutes later, but the egg it was supposed to protect did not survive. Michael McGee, right, president of the Palm Beach County chapter of the National Space Society, shows Don Paxson, of Jupiter, where the Mars Pathfinder landed.
